PREFACE

THE FIRST Epigraphical Index purports to give the names of men and women which have appeared in Greek in the first ten volumes of Hesperia and in its first six supplements. Most of the names, though by no means all, are from epigraphical texts. Some inscriptions have been indexed, notably from Hesperia, Supplement I, which have been considered an integral part of the publication though the texts themselves are printed in full elsewhere. References to publications in the Corpus and in other standard works are numerous, but in every case a reference is also given to volume and page of Hesperia.

References to Hesperia have Roman numerals for the volume number, followed by Arabic for the page. If the text cited has also an inscription number, this is added in parentheses; the line of the inscription is shown by smaller numerals. For example: "Αγνος Στεφηνόρου (Αἰξωνεύς), IV 44 (1043) refers the name to Volume IV, page 44, inscription no. 10, line 43. Numbers of supplementary volumes are preceded by the letter S: e. g., a reference to Hesperia, Supplement I, is indicated by SI. These same conventions are of course employed in the General Index.

The Greek text of names is given, so far as possible, as it appears in the passage cited, but with inferred demotics or tribes in parentheses. The inference is registered, however, only if it comes from the context of the passage in question; collateral evidence is not used. The most common reasons for inferring the name of a man's deme are (1) that his name appears in a list of demesmen and (2) that he is the father of a man whose deme is named. Homonymous patronymics represented by the stenographic symbol ρ are indexed regularly in longhand, each name being given the same form, including restorations, as that of the son; and the name of the father thus added to the rolls is assigned a date 33 years earlier than his offspring, except that fathers of epheboi are assumed to be younger and are arbitrarily given dates only twenty years earlier. The span of 33 years is taken throughout as the "normal" generation. Roman names are indexed by nomina and cognomina but not by praenomina unless this is the only form in which the names appear.

Whenever there are several citations of a given name, the correct form is shown before each citation. There is no repetition if the form remains the same, and wherever possible repeated items are abbreviated. For example, "Αβρων Καλλίου Βατῆθεν appears in SI 204 (II); the name appears as ["Αβρων]ος τοῦ Καλλίου Βατῆθεν in SI 205 (III), but this is entered in the index as ["A.] K. B.

The Epigraphical Indexes are, in the main, the work of Dr. A. E. Raubitschek, but it is to be remarked that many people, working at different times, shared in their preparation. In general, inconsistencies in style and wording have been eliminated, but the editors make no apology for such as remain. It has not seemed worth while to reset type merely to change an occasional "A.D. 200" to "200 A.D.," or to insert or remove commas for the sake of absolute uniformity. But much effort has been expended to secure the exactitude of the citations.

Occasionally new facts about some of the names, or new dates and restorations, have come to light since the completion of Vol. X. We have included these corrections in the index, so that one will find here some new material, and references to later volumes. We wish especially to thank colleagues who have written suggestions to the editors during the past ten years. Their individual contributions are noted under the names to which they apply. Finally, it should perhaps be mentioned, specifically, that in the complicated matter of the dates of the Athenian archons an effort has been made to take account of recent research: in particular, the dates of the archons of the Roman Imperial period are those in Appendix II of J. H. Oliver's "Greek Inscriptions," Hesperia, XI, 1942, pp. 81-89, and the dates of the archons of the third and second centuries before Christ are those found in W. K. Pritchett and B. D. Meritt, The Chronology of Hellenistic Athens (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1940) pp. xv-xxxv (in connection with the period from 307/6 to 262/1 be it said that the table of archons published by W. Kolbe in the Sitzungsberichte der Heidelberger Akademie der Wissenschaften, phil.-hist. Klasse, Jahrgang 1942/1943, Erste Abhandlung, pp. 1-75, constructed without knowledge of the tables published by Pritchett and Meritt [loc. cit.], offers in our judgment no reason to alter the dates proposed by Pritchett and Meritt).

All who at one time or another have worked on the compiling of this Index must make special acknowledgment to Mrs. Wesley Dauncey for her tireless help in the reading and checking of proofs.

INSCRIPTIONS STUDIED OR EMENDED

This index covers Hesperia, Vols. I-XIV, and Supplements I-VII. Especial care has been given to the inscriptions of Athens; others have been dealt with more briefly. For example, a complete record of the texts in Supplement VI will be found at the end of that volume, rather than here where only the principal publications are noted. This concordance does not pretend to gather all the outside references.
